Part A — Role and context

Goal: establish the participant's relevant experience without collecting unnecessary personal data.

I1. Please describe your current or recent role and the parts of your work related to lending, credit, collections, finance, or debt management.

I2. What kinds of personal debt or repayment arrangements do you most often encounter?

Part B — Existing workflow, problems, and domain rules

Goal: understand current practices, failure points, exceptions, and information requirements before discussing the proposed system.

- I13. Please walk us through how a borrower typically learns what is due, makes a payment, and confirms the updated balance.
- I14. What debt-management difficulties do borrowers commonly experience, and what usually causes them?
- I15. Think of a generalized case where debt management went wrong. What happened first, what followed, and what information could have prevented or reduced the problem?
- I16. What minimum information must be recorded for a debt balance and payment history to be trustworthy?
- I17. Which interest, fee, or payment-allocation rules commonly create confusion?
- I18. When a borrower has several debts but limited money, what factors should be considered before deciding what to pay first?
- I19. When might a highest-interest-first approach or a smallest-balance-first approach be unsuitable or need a warning?
- I110. What makes a reminder useful rather than harmful or easy to ignore?
- I111. What payment evidence should a borrower keep, and what should happen when the record and the lender's statement do not match?
- I112. How should affordability or debt-to-income information be explained to avoid giving a false sense of certainty?
- I113. What risks arise when giving guidance about which existing credit card to use, or when converting debt amounts across currencies?

Part C — System requirements and safeguards

Goal: translate domain knowledge into verifiable requirements while keeping implementation feasible for a student team.

- I14. Which tasks and calculations must be accurate even when no internet connection is available? Which tasks may reasonably wait for internet?
- I15. What checks should occur before a receipt image or manually entered payment changes a balance?
- I16. What privacy and security safeguards are essential for a borrower-facing debt tool?
- I17. If an AI service explains a repayment plan, what must remain deterministic, visible, or under the user's control?
- I18. What outputs would be most useful to borrowers, and what outputs could be misunderstood or misused?

Part D — DebtWise concept review (disclose only now)

Read the brief concept statement, then ask the participant to judge value, risks, and semester-level feasibility.

Debt/interest/payment records	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
Avalanche/snowball schedules + explanation	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
Target payoff-date planner	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐

Analytics dashboard	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐
Offline core functions	☐	☐	☐	☐	☐

I20. If the team can perfect only three user journeys this semester, which three should they choose and why?

I22. What should the system explicitly refuse to do or warn the user about?

I23. What one requirement would you insist on before allowing borrowers to test the prototype?
